

Key #2: Trust is vital in any relationship if it is to be anything more than a surface relationship.

- Do I trust that You love me?
- Do I trust that You will always make a way through every situation?
- Do I trust that You are taking everything and turning it toward Your good purposes for my life?
- Do I trust that You have kingdom work for me to do?
- Do I trust that You are leading me toward greater healing and toward wholeness and completion in Christ?
- Do I trust that Jesus enters into my struggle with me and hurts with me?
- Do I trust that Jesus died for my sin and my pain so that I can live in the loving embrace of my Father?
- Do I trust that no matter what is going on externally that You will bring me into a place of rest and peace and that Jesus gladly bears my burdens?
- Do I trust that Your favor and blessing are poured out on me and that I am highly esteemed by You?
- Do I trust that what Satan and the world mean for evil You will always use for Your good purposes?
- Do I trust that You are here present with me moment by moment desiring an intimate heart connection with me?
- Do I trust that Your perfect love can pierce through my fear, doubt and anxiety and that Jesus is a wellspring of hope, joy and love flowing in my heart and radiating out through my whole being?
- Do I trust that suffering is always a doorway to deeper maturity and intimacy with You?
